

$11,000 READY FOR IMPROVING CHURCH

Encouraging Reports Given at Annual Meeting of Baptists.

In spite of the storm, several hundred attended church Thursday night. A good supper, entertaining music, and satisfactory reports of activities featured the program.

Treasurer William E. Clinton's report showed current expenses of the year to have been $10,022.30. This combined with the balance of $1,000 reported by the treasurer, Roy Eller, as reported by the treasurer, L. G. Catchpole, made a grand total of $11,022.30 as the budget of the church. This amount contributed from an active membership of 104 and an audience of 1,000. Another interesting item is that the expense of the moving picture entertainment this past year, has been $10.25, practically covered by collections taken on those occasions.

$11,000 for Building by the churchman of the church, O. Catchpole, showed the society has invested $11,150 out at interest to the sum of $11,150, which is being held pending the time when the organization will build an addition, or rebuild the interior.

The report of the fellowship treasurer, Charles Eller, showed an expenditure of $12.12 had been made during the past season, and by the fund, the society had taken care of its own poor, through the untiring labor, during the stress of unemployment last winter.

Reports from the church school by Roy Currier showed a disbursement of $710.64. The Women's Missionary society, president, Mrs. L. G. Catchpole, reported, Mrs. C. P. Lester; King's Daughters, Mrs. William Conrad; Helpful Circle, Mrs. L. D. Barker; World Wide Guild, Miss Rhoda Sherman, and the U. F. U., Mrs. O. Sanderson, gave reports.

Objective points toward which the church must strive during the next year as outlined by the pastor, include a development of the church, missionary education, the church school, 20 per cent attendance of the members at prayer meetings, and other points.

The Chamber of Commerce quartet sang several numbers, in one of which Miss Loraine Bowerman took the solo part. Mrs. W. W. Miller gave a musical reading, "The Lady of Shalott," accompanied by Miss Ada Pond on the piano, and the newly organized Baptist orchestra played several selections. A cafeteria supper was served at 6:30 to 100 people by a committee from each woman's organization of the church headed by Miss Mary Barker. Beautiful decorations of autumn foliage and flowers were arranged by the Good Will class, by a committee consisting of W. Selmer, Mrs. K. Crissey and Mrs. John H. Graham.

The officers elected by the society to serve for the ensuing year are as follows:

Trustees, 3 years, J. D. Humphrey, Charles Chase, J. T. Fitchett, assistant clerk, Mrs. J. T. Fitchett; Roy Eller; assistant, Mrs. Maurice Smith; Superintendent of church school, J. T. Analysis of Janesville City Government

Prepared for the Janesville Daily Gazette by Gaylord Cummin, C. E., Institute of Public Service, N. Y. City.

X-HEALTH.

The Health Department is just getting a start and is so starved for finances that it is hardly possible to get entirely adequate results. The general and specific death rates for the past five years show much better conditions than are the average over the country, except that at times the death rate from diarrhoea and enteritis among children under two years has been high. This is largely a fly borne water or milk infection.

Attention is called to the fact that while emphasis has been laid on the collection of garbage, which seems to be well done, nothing has been done in seeing that all manure is kept in closed boxes.

The city is plagued with flies in summer and fall—potentially disease carriers. The Health Officer is quoted in a recent newspaper interview to the effect that neighboring farmers are responsible for the large number of flies. They should not be blamed until the city itself is cleaned of breeding places.

There are two deposits of manure that were seen in the center of the city, the fairgrounds furnishing another instance. A clean-up on manure heaps is badly needed. No ordinance covers this.

The blank used by the Sanitary Inspector for the inspection of soda fountains, restaurants, etc., was noticed. It is not sufficiently detailed and is useless except in the hands of an exceptional man. In one soda fountain it bore the endorsement "No Recommendations," while plain violations of sanitary fundamentals were in plain sight. There was no hot water, glasses and spoons were washed by rinsing in a sink of dirty water and draining—no soap or washing powder used, not rinsed in cold water, and spoons and straws in uncovered container. If all of the food inspection is of this character, it is a farce. Copies of approved score cards for use in soda fountains and restaurants are attached to this report. An ordinance providing that such places shall be scored on a card approved by the department and that a card furnished by the department, carrying this score, be displayed prominently in the place of business will be found very effective.

This type of score card will enable an untrained man to make a complete inspection, will inform the owner of the definite items in which he is deficient and will bring public opinion to bear to get the place cleaned up.

Darien Greets Ex-Residents

(Special to the Gazette.)

Darien—Darien's annual welcome to former residents and visitors who came from Rock and Walworth counties Thursday was a great success. The excitement began at 10 a. m. when the fire whistle was blown and the fire department furnished a thrill in rushing to put out a bonfire in the northern part of town.

A parade, headed by the Holton band of Elkhorn, was participated in by a large number of people in autos and on foot. A float representing the Cradle Roll of the Baptist church was given first prize. The Consolidated school bus was decorated in purple and gold, and won second.

The races followed, including running sack and fat men's race. Clarence Fehrm proved the star in the fat men's event. Fluke Zahn won first and Harold Anderson in the pony race and Oscar Zimmerman first and John Mahoney second in the horse race.

At noon a picnic dinner was served. Wilson Dodge was the oldest man who registered and Mrs. Margaret Misner the oldest woman being 80 years old. Jack Jones of Fairfield had the largest family. On roll call 11 answered present.

UP FOR RECKLESS DRIVING, ASKS TRIAL

"I want a trial by a 12-man jury," said Frank McDermott when pleading not guilty in municipal court, Friday, to a charge of reckless driving. McDermott "hogged" the Janesville-Egerton concrete highway, Thursday, according to Patrolman Joseph Myers, who tried to pass him. When he questioned him later, McDermott swore at him, he alleges.

"I didn't hear him if he did blow his horn for me to get out of the way," said McDermott.

"You can have a six-man jury trial if you want it," said Judge H. L. MacNeil in adjourning the case one week.

With a soul-penetrating smile of rich humor, the audience at the Myers theatre passed out of the playhouse Thursday night filled with the wisdom of what E. W. Weiman knows. They obtained it from the Paramount picture of that name through the remarkable acting of Lois Wilson, the heroine. The movie is among the finest that has ever been brought to this city.

Jack Lee, an Orpheum circuit man, filling one of his weeks with a turn at the Myers, stars in the vaudeville bill, which is a splendid variety show, the audience demanding

GRIMM ADMITS 30 AS U. S. CITIZENS

Four Women Get Voting Rights—Several Applications Refused.

Thirty Rock county residents, including four women, were admitted to citizenship during the naturalization hearing before Judge George Grimm Thursday in Rock county circuit court.

The four women admitted were Christina Wickstrom, Clinton; Ann Voigt and Anna Burtz, Edgerton; and Lena Koef, Beloit.

Because they had claimed exemptions as aliens during the World war, Salvatore Gruber, Peter Gruber, Francesco Summarino and Peter Poling were refused papers and their applications dismissed. The petition of Frederick W. Ringhand was continued until October 1 to allow the government to make an investigation of his draft record and war claims.

The cases of George H. Stevens, English, and Carmelo Buscane, Italian, were continued for further postponement.

The court was unable to grant Emil Brunner his papers for one of his witnesses, O. Luchinger, Monroe, suffered an injury in an automobile accident while coming to Janesville to testify. The application of George Paraskavopoulos, Beloit, was continued because of the absence of a witness.

Three times Romeo Saladino, Beloit Italian, attempted to pass the test. He failed each time and Judge Grimm dismissed his application for failing to attempt to learn things every American should know.

Francesco Curatolo failed twice, but went to night school in Beloit and succeeded in passing.

Build a Community Center and Convention Hall for the city for educational, social, musical, and other purposes, and have it belong to the whole city. This is also a part of a program to provide music and entertainment for the people the year around. Complete the city plan. Make more small parks and playgrounds and have them scattered throughout the city so that the whole people may recreate at will.

Gain for auto tourists coming to Janesville a parking place.

Erect a permanent memorial for the soldiers of the World War, suitable and adequate, and preserve the graves and souvenirs of that and all other American wars in a public place.

Finish the paving of Janesville streets and complete the sewer system.

Make all main highways into city of concrete to connect with good pavements in Janesville.

Keep the city looking bright and clean with paint and the streets free from filth.

Either build a new hotel or so increase the facilities of the present hotels as to take care of the traveling public and be able to hold conventions.

Finish the high school at an early date and give the children proper educational facilities.

THE COMING OF AUTUMN.

One little touch of frost last Monday morning was not enough to color the leaves or to take a shade from the spread of greenness of the grass and the shrubbery. Our language is so lacking in descriptive phrases that we can look over the landscape on a perfect day like Wednesday, and breathing in the sunshine and the air, untouched even with a tinge of approaching fall, fall utterly with words to express the keen joy that fills the soul.

But the hour is inescapable when this will come to an end. The sun is shining a little farther down the other side of the world and summer is on the way in Argentina. Nature, the painter, will soon be at work. Once more we will open the art gallery of hill and valley and ridge and the brush of an old master's hand will put on the shifting canvas of the seasons, a new color scheme. It may be true that it has been there before—that same picture—but it comes each fall with added charm. Those sad poets who were always taking the glorious joy out of life with sombre verse about the dying year and the lesson that whatever lives must die, lose their emphasis and waste their time to one who can drink in the wondrous beauty of autumn colorings and the kaleidoscopic change of yellow and brown, gold and red, with here and there the evergreen standing forth in an accented note.

Fall with its arid smoke from burning leaves, the fields of shocked corn, the green patches of new wheat and rye, or of clover still dreading the frost, the stimulus of a warning chill in the air, has its compensations greater even than spring with its promise, winter with its social demands or summer with its heat and storm.

There is glory enough for all, as Captain Phillips said at Santiago. Philadelphia will win the fall end place in the American League without a rival.

NO QUESTION AS TO WHERE THE RECORD CAME FROM.

The photograph cannot be held responsible for the bad record, it plays what is there, scratches, breaks and all.

Objections to publicity of bad records in city government as being hurtful, should be aimed at the men responsible for the record.

They made it.

Will the football eleven come under the disarmament conference?

WILL BE NO SYMPATHY WITH OBSTRUCTION.

The country voted its overwhelming opinion last November as to what it wanted. It voiced its approval of the opposition to the Versailles treaty. It approved the republican promise that a treaty would be made with Germany and an end officially to the state of war, would be reached. Since then two elections have been held of a federal character. New Mexico elected a republican senator with a majority larger than normal, and at an election on Tuesday of this week in Massachusetts to select a congressman, a republican was chosen by a tremendous plurality. These are straws that show the way of the political wind.

Ordinarily congress does not meet until 13 months after election. If a special session had not been called by the president, there would have been no session until two months hence, in December, 1921. But all summer long congress has been working on the tremendous problems which the war left and which have followed the changes incident thereto. Great progress has been made. Expenses have been cut, a taxation bill has been formulated, a tariff bill has been in course of making and the peace treaty resolution passed, signed by both Germany and representatives of the United States. It is before the senate for ratification and now the democrats promise they will filibuster in an effort to block action. Mr. Wilson seems to have an idea that he can so dictate to enough of his former followers as to block action. The people buried Mr. Wilson, his treaty, his policies, his fads and fancies, under some 7,000,000 votes and selected the republican party to do the things it wanted done. It is quite possible that the necessary number of democratic senators will not be available to follow Mr. Wilson in his effort to stop the treaty. By continual filibustering himself, Mr. Wilson will be able some day to obtain forgiveness, but if he attempts to block the nation's return to normal conditions, he will find himself cementing the people in another great army of opposition to himself and his party.

Where Handicraft Still Reigns

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

East Aurora, N. Y.—What is East Aurora doing since Elbert Hubbard and his wife went down on the Lusitania? People come here wondering if they will find slackness or decay in the home of the Roycrofters. Instead, there is trim neatness about the plant, the same busy, craftsman at work in the shops, the same unusual atmosphere of tranquility which somehow has always pervaded the place.

The Roycroft plant, you doubtless remember, is the project started by Elbert Hubbard 25 years ago. Hubbard had lived in the village of East Aurora for 30 years without giving any signs of one day making it famous. He was in the soap business then, and had he kept on mixing soap he would in time have been a millionaire, as his partner, Larkin, became.

But the life of a merchant palled on the artistically inclined Hubbard. At 33 he took the first step toward reclaiming his individuality. He sold out and went to Harvard.

Then he started a little printing shop in East Aurora, and with his philosophy, his writings and his personality, he gathered about him the Roycroft community and gradually built what is now the Roycroft plant with 250 workers.

East Aurora was on the map in a quiet way as a New York village before Hubbard's personality began to flower. Hubbard made it popular, and gradually East Aurora became synonymous with Roycroft and Elbert Hubbard. You cannot write or talk about one without implying the other. The homes of the village are mainly the craftsman's homes. The whole community seems to center on the shady street where the low ivy-covered shops of the Hubbard plant stand.

Hubbard took it for granted that the world would recognize that he and his Roycrofters made East Aurora what it has become. When East Aurora got a new railroad station, Hubbard wrote to the railroad company and asked permission to make the station sign and put the Roycroft trademark on it beside the name East Aurora. The railroad company was astounded at the suggestion. Never had any railroad company been allowed on a station sign, and they promptly informed Mr. Hubbard of the high and long-standing traditions of the road. But Hubbard was not vanquished. He persisted in his arguments until he convinced the officials that the booming business in railroad tickets between East Aurora and points in all directions was due to the Roycrofters and that they were East Aurora. Today the East Aurora station is probably the only one in the country that has a sign decorated with a trademark.

The story of the new railroad station is another Hubbard story. The town had a disreputable-looking shack in which to buy its tickets and pass the time of day. But four years ago Hubbard turned his attention to the depot. Every month his magazine carried an intense editorial about the awful depot situation at East Aurora. One month he printed a picture of the ramshackle station and beside it, in his palatial concrete hog pen, that was too much for the railroad. It suggested that the railroad company should build a new station to Hubbard for his approval.

Today, the guiding spirit of the Roycrofters is Elbert Hubbard. Hubbard's son is a copy of him, but with some variations. His hair is not long as his father, Fra Elbertus, wore his. And the younger Hubbard bears less of a resemblance to William Jennings Bryan, than his father did. But young Elbert Hubbard wears a homespun suit of brown, comfortable shoes, and the flowing black tie that his father affected.

This tie is a sort of Roycroft badge. "The young men who work in the shops bookbind metal work and illuminating, quite generally wear these flowing black or blue ties, partly, we imagine, as a concession to the artistic temperament, but more as a tribute to the departed leader."

Elbert Hubbard sits down to talk, but he is interrupted every few minutes by messages and consultations. Obviously, he is no figurehead in the plant.

"Elbert Hubbard left the Roycroft plant as a monument," he explains, "and I am preserving it as the museum of the movement. I am not a submerger in my own personality here, but I do not agree with them. I find satisfaction in bringing father's work to other people, and I can do things for him along that line that he never had time to do for himself."

The Roycroft community should go on in his way until something better can replace it, and I believe that is a long way off. He builded better than he knew."

Hubbard's idea, his son reminds you, was work. He contended that there is no such thing as menial labor. He said, "The man that has a job is lucky." It was one of his favorite axioms, and he played with the idea in all sorts of epigrams, such as "Happy is that man who has found his work."

But though Hubbard regarded all work as sacred, he was discriminating enough to realize that creative work is more interesting and satisfying than purely mechanical processes. So when he started his craft shop he installed machinery for only the tedious processes. For the rest he believed the old simple ways of doing craftswork were best.

Men and women were set to work making things by hand, spending as much time as necessary on their bookbinding, sawing, or modeling with no strict factory rules to drive them on.

Hubbard further sought to insure contentment and industry by making his factory cooperative. If a workman had a share in the profits he figured that there was nothing to fear from capital-labor difficulties.

The shops he built of stone, which the farmers would sell for a dollar a load. They were low, well designed buildings, set in green lawns and partly covered with vines. Hubbard set out to make his shops attractive as another means of contenting his workers, especially the boys and girls of East Aurora. He disliked to see the young people growing up restless at home on the little farms. Yet he disliked still more to hear that this one or that had left for the city. So, from the time of the first little shop with its eight workers, Hubbard encouraged and made possible artistic surroundings.

The power of suggestion was revered by Hubbard, and it is everywhere employed to keep East Aurorians mindful of their possibilities. Motions for every emergency and emotion are found about the Roycroft buildings. Such thoughtful sayings as "The Mintage of wisdom is to know that rest is rest, and that real life is in love, laughter and work" may be followed by a more ironical warning as "Your eyes and your ears inform you, not your tongue."

The final psychological factor in Hubbard's plan was that he took a vital interest in every phase of the work. He was always eager to experiment with new benefits for his Roycrofters. The shop gradually expanded from one small room to a cluster of buildings. An inn had to be built to take care of visitors. A bank was started to encourage the Roycrofters to save their money.

Elbert Hubbard is, he himself says, more of a business man than a literary genius or pioneer. He finds enough to do simply carrying on. He does not indulge in interesting experiments, as the artist delighted to do. In the first Hubbard's day, Roycroft was a cumulative project, always broadening and branching out. Now it seems to be advancing straight ahead.

Emma Goldman finds she is restricted in her liberty in Russia. Up about the latitude where Doc Cook spent the winter ought to satisfy her.

Now that daylight saving has had its summer day, one may travel with one watch and be safe.

THINKING OF RILEY.

Oh, I always think of Riley, when the frost comes back again.
And the pumpkin's yellow glory cheers the weary hearts of men.
With the apples ripe for eating and the grate fire shedding cheer
I always think of Riley, for he loved this time of year.

I wish that I could sing it as he sang it long ago.
The beauty of the orchards and the woods where colors glow.
The clucking of the chickens and the turkeys in a flock.
"When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fowls in the shock."

Now the glory of the harvest is about us everywhere.
And there's something appetizing in the fragrance of the air.
But there's only one thing missing, old Jim Riley should be here.
To revel in the splendor, for he loved this time of year.

LITTLE PADS OF THE GREAT.

He is not a member of the V. V. He never wears pink pajamas on the street. He is only an indifferent roller skater. He never eats dinner in his shirt sleeves. He does not carry six-shooters. He is not very fond of pickled tripe. He doesn't care what anybody thinks of his stance. He is opposed to the divine right of kings. He spends very little time playing kelly pool. He writes very little verse. He never wears carpet slippers at receptions. He has never written a musical show. He is not writing one now. He does not play the ukulele. In fact, he is a "regular guy."

What has become of the old-fashioned actor who stoutly proclaimed that he would never appear in pictures? A kind word doesn't cost a cent, but you would think it was some folks' last dollar.

It must be winter is at hand. The ladies are putting their furs away.

Who's Who Today

AMBASSADOR SHIDEHARA.

The selection of Ambassador Kijuro Shidehara as the second ranking member of the Japanese delegation to the disarmament conference in Washington this fall has met with as much approbation in America as in Japan.

Before Mr. Shidehara came to Washington he had served for years as vice minister of foreign affairs in Tokyo, a position of permanent tenure which he greatly distinguished himself. He has served many years in both the consular and the diplomatic branches of the service. Mr. Shidehara is a trained diplomat and a long time before he came to Washington with ambassadorial rank in the legal department of the foreign office. He has long experience in the selection of Japanese delegates to the League of Nations and the Japanese delegation, Mr. Shidehara has conducted with tact and ability the many delicate negotiations committed to his hands since his arrival in Washington. It is recognized that a happy choice has been made, and it is certainly one that is most acceptable to the department of state. Mr. Shidehara is only 40 years of age, and consequently will be one of the youngest and perhaps the junior of all the negotiators at the conference.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Now the farmer looks upon his farm as an industrial plant that must earn wages for those who work in it and a fair return on the invested capital. The farmer sells most of what he produces and buys most of what he uses.

City people are no longer satisfied to live on the products of the region in which they reside, but draw upon the food resources of the world. Vacant town lots grow up in weeds, while the city dweller in his kitchen garden or the household runs at the cost of vegetables while demanding that these materials be laid on the back porch at a convenient hour each morning, washed and tied in bunches or contained in expensive packages. City people demand fruit, flowers, vegetables and meat of season, brought from great distances or produced under artificial conditions at great expense. Increased transportation rates and higher handling charges are not sufficient to curb this desire for luxury.

In a similar manner, although not to the same degree, has the average farm family departed from the frugal habits of our elders. The head of the household has many delicate and many farm families go without milk or use a condensed product that has been shipped half way across the continent. The family garden and orchard are in many cases neglected for field crops that can be sold while shipped carloads of fat hogs from the farm the family buys back the hams, bacon and lard it uses. It is too much trouble, farmers say, to belong to a beef and supply themselves with fresh meat at cost, yet they complain bitterly of the wide difference between the price they get for live animals and what they pay for meat at the butcher shop.

In meeting present financial difficulties, return in part at least to the simple and frugal ways of living of our forefathers will help substantially. It is an old remedy applied to new ills.—Kansas City Star.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Forty Years Ago

Sept. 30, 1881.—The Burr Robbins and Colvin show is now travelling in the state and will close the season with a big show here October 19.—A number from here are attending the state fair in Peoria, Ill. The news that the Janesville firemen had won in the contest at Freeport reached the city before the boys did and they were given a rousing welcome in spite of the rain.

Thirty Years Ago

Sept. 30, 1891.—There are more boys now in the high school than ever. The reason is thought to be because of the establishment of a commercial course. (The class of '95, just entered, has 21 boys, and 30 boys more.) A larger class than usually enters.—The races yesterday were a big success and more will be run today.

Twenty Years Ago

Sept. 30, 1901.—Yesterday was Rally day at the Baptist church and the members of the Sunday school gave an excellent program.—An attempt to blow up the grave of President McKinley in Canton, Ohio, was foiled by guards and the ghouls were captured.

Ten Years Ago

Sept. 30, 1911.—Fighting in the Mediterranean has started between Italy and Turkey, war having been officially declared yesterday afternoon. The first blood lost was on the side of the Italians, as one of their large battleships was sunk.—A re-assessment of Janesville, to be started immediately has been ordered by the state tax commission.

STILL MORE OXYGEN

Human life is a constant process of combustion—the burning of fuel to free its energy for muscular and functional work. The fuel is food, converted into body tissue. Although some persons are said to burn the candle at both ends, the fact is that the great majority of us suffer by reason of too slow combustion; that is, in part attributable to choking the fire with an excess of fuel, and in part to poor draft. No fire can burn without draft. Combustion can take place without oxygen. Life languishes when the oxidation process is slow. Although there is oxygen aplenty all about us, the great majority of us, as I say, slowly smother to death—succumb prematurely—merely because we don't just take pains to regulate the fuel and the draft and consequently our metabolism gets out of order.

Get that metabolism fixed in your vocabulary. It's an impressive word—just 30 years better than liver complaint, impure blood, it means the combustion process, which is life. When you've mastered metabolism, so that you can feel it off your tongue without an insidious hesitation, add the basis of it to your knowledge, and you have a popular word these days. Basal metabolism is the minimum essential for the continuation of normal life in a state of absolute rest. Don't ask your friend how his liver is working this morning. Say, "Hello, Pete, how's the old basal metabolism today?"

It is all a matter of oxygenation. Not deep breathing. No, you may breathe as deeply as you like, but you can't make your blood absorb any more oxygen or your body tissues use any more that way, aside from the effect of the muscular effort involved in the breathing process. The way you can make your body absorb and use more oxygen is by general muscular exercise. Two miles of oxygen three times a day on the foot path, or a fair amount of work of exercise for persons who wish to keep well and fit.

At some altitude some persons with impaired metabolism experience unpleasant effects from a dearth of oxygen—the oxygen supply is comparatively scant in the air of elevated places, and one just coasting along close to basal easily exhausts his small surplus.

It has been found that unfit persons can put forth active muscular effort without discomfort if the air they breathe is saturated with a little more than the natural proportion of oxygen, and fit persons can comfortably endure a strain or overload in such air that would soon exhaust them in ordinary air. Ordinary air contains about one-fifth part of oxygen, the benefit of saturating air with oxygen was found to be limited to air containing about three-fifths (60 per cent) oxygen. These are mere experiments in physiology.

Practically, the ordinary open air anywhere is good enough, rich enough in oxygen. Easy enough to fill your lungs with it, too. But that isn't enough every day to keep the life fire burning.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Is there any treatment which will stop a habitual drunkard from drinking liquor? Although the country is a "dry" one, the liquor traffic is still in vogue, where liquor is made and sold. (Mrs. J. B. C.)

Answer: Only by consent and cooperation of the alcoholic victim himself can the physician overcome his craving for treatment, in a hospital or other institution.

Used Clothing.

Is there any danger of contracting contagious diseases by wearing used clothing that has been worn by another? If so, there are any ways such clothing can be disinfected? Would it be better to answer the purpose? (M. W.)

Answer: There is probably no such danger, but steam cleaning, washing and ironing or pressing, or naphtha cleaning followed by pressing would make the clothing safe to wear.

Q. My hair is curly in the summer, but becomes straight in the winter. What can I do to keep it curly the year round? H. L.

A. In cool weather, dampen the hair by combing with a wet towel. Placing the outspread fingers on the hair while wet, will make a wave resembling a marcel.

Q. How tall is Tilden, the tennis player, and how much does he weigh? E. N.

A. William Tilden is 6 feet 1 inch tall, and weighs 165 pounds.

Q. How much wire is there in the cables of the Brooklyn bridge? J. G.

A. The four great cables of the Brooklyn bridge are each composed of 19 separate strands, each strand 1.75 inches in diameter. The total length of wire in the four cables unwrapped is 1,980 miles.

Q. Who introduced printing in America? R. M. A.

A. The first book printed in the new world was probably a translation from Latin into Spanish of "The Spiritual Ladder" in 1533. Juan de Zamarram, a Franciscan monk, first brought printing to America. The first book printed in America was "The Doctrine Christiana," printed in Mexico City by Juan Pablos in 1544.

Q. Are sponges plants or animals? S. T. P.

A. Sponges are popularly regarded as a kind of sea plant, but in reality they are the skeletons of a low type of animal. They are reproduced by means of eggs, and the developed larvae are partly clothed with small, which enable them to swim or drift around until they find suitable places for adhesion.

Q. Please settle an argument by giving the source of the quotation, "You can't make him drink." H. C.

A. This quotation is traced to John Heywood (circa 1555) in whose "Proverbs" appears: "A man may well bring a horse to the water, but he cannot make him drink without he will."

Q. When was the day of private soldiers raised from $13 a month? L. S. C.

A. The war department says that congress passed an act May 11, 1903, changing the pay of American soldiers from $13 to $14 a month.

Milk Is Cheap At Almost Any Price.

It is poor economy to save on vital foods. Nothing will fill the gap in the human diet if milk is discontinued. Children particularly need it. Milk contains food factors which balance the diet, supplying the all-important vitamins which other foods must lack, and which are so vital to the human machine.

But milk is often exposed to disease and dirt instead of being highly nutritious. The necessary article of food it may become a carrier of deadly disease germs. You cannot tell whether milk is good or bad by looking at it, by smelling it, or by tasting it. There is no natural defense signal to warn you that it is unclean.

But you can learn a great deal about milk which will be of incalculable value in protecting you and your family by applying to our Washington Information Bureau for a prospectus. It is free. Dinner Stories

Judge Henderson is ready to challenge Colonel Murray in the oldest story contest, and submits this one: An Irishman was handing down a whole hog. He let a stick drop, and the whole hog went up, taking Mike with it.

The quarry boss came around later and said to another Irishman, "Where is Mike?"

"He's gone," replied Pat.

"When will he be back?" asked the boss.

"Never," replied Pat. "If he comes back as fast as he went, he'll be back yesterday."

Two Scotchmen were on a raft drifting on a stormy sea. Angus knelt and began to pray.

"Oh Lord," he said, "I ken I've broken the fast of my commandments, but O Lord, if I'm spared this time I promise."

Here Andrew interrupted him.

"I widge commit yourself over far, Angus," said he. "I think I see land."

America's Greatest Game

No, the greatest American game is not baseball. It is bluff—prejudice. It is the game that we are not to have that which we don't possess. Have you noticed that those who have money don't try to keep up appearances, in order to make an impression? It's not "keeping up" but "keeping ahead" that counts. The runner who merely keeps up doesn't win the race. Frankly, we want to help those to get ahead, who are not assumed to be successful. For the sake of putting a dollar in their savings accounts.

CHAPTER XXXVI.
PLAYING THE GAME

For a week or so after I made the decision everything went beautifully. I never complained of being a third wheel. I was so. I never said I was thoroughly bored, though some of the people we went around with were most tiresome.

"Gwen was in the office today," Win said one afternoon. "She's living informally at home, and asked us."

I had planned something else that night, and unwisely protested, "Why do you want to see a sick woman this evening?" I said, "We might go to Gwendolyn's later, and dine here at home."

"Who's sick?"

"Our laundress, she's—"

"Our heaven's sake, Connie," he burst out in sudden annoyance, "why do you want your time like that? You know it's nice and charitable and very sweet of you to do all that sort of thing, but leave charity to homely old women."

"Win!" I protested. "What a way to talk! Look at me, a good young man, ready to see a sick woman!"

"That's just it. She runs a dozen families around Wellsville. Don't you get into anything like that?"

Possibly he caught an expression in my face, for his attitude changed at once. He came across the room and put his arms around me.

"Don't mind me when I talk like a girl," he coaxed. "Mother probably has a lot of good points, but you're so young and pretty. Charity is a graceful profession for the aged and lonely."

"You've heard Gwen say that. It sounds like her," I remarked, for once reluctant to his cross.

"I did," he said and laughed. "Come out and dance with me this evening. We're going to dance at Gwen's after dinner. Charity begins at home, don't you?"

"Win, do you love me very much?" I asked suddenly.

"Of course. Little goose." He kissed me to prove it.

That kiss ended whatever doubts I had as to the wisdom of my new decision. I dressed in my prettiest and I was as charming as I could be to Gwen when she came.

Gwen had a new enthusiasm, a musician who was trying to push. Win thought this charitable of her, for the man had some talent, but no money. I'm afraid I thought otherwise. The man was very handsome, with a certain sentimentality of manner that I personally did not like—I thought he over-did it.

"I don't like him," Win confessed after dinner. "But it's charming of her to have him around."

DO YOU USE POWDER?

Every once in a while I am surprised by a letter from a young woman asking me whether it is a good thing to use powder. I say that I am surprised because somehow I take it for granted that every woman who uses powder knows it is a good thing. There is never any question of morals involved, for few people are narrow enough to say that it is wicked to put powder on the skin. Nor is there any question of whether it is physically good or bad. Face powder neither benefits nor harms the skin.

As a matter of fact, I don't know why we do use face powder. I think it is because it is the custom. I think the young girl waits impatiently for the day when she can use a powder puff. Yet the child's face never seems shiny or in need of a dusting. But when she uses the powder habit she never looks right to herself, at least, until she has put some on.

As a matter of fact, I think we rather overdo the habit. I am quite sure that none of us need use powder as frequently as we do. There are times, of course when it is very useful. When you are running about the city and feel hot and sticky and dirty, rubbing over the face with a little powder makes you feel fresh and clean and cool again. Besides, a little antiseptic powder rubbed into the skin is no more harmful than the dust that flies up from the city streets.

It is a matter of custom, as I said before. We have a habit of using face powder, so we use it every time we pause before a mirror. I think we would be better off if we used it more sparingly.

June—Practice deep breathing. Stand correctly and massage all of the muscles of the chest each night, using a nourishing oil. In the morning draw cold water over the chest and dry by using friction from a coarse towel. This is a delicate part of the body, so care should be exercised either in massaging or the friction from the towel. If you stand correctly, the chest is forward and the stomach flattened, which is often all that most women require to bring the lines of the figure into proper proportions. Deep breathing so strengthens all the muscles of the chest, the small bust is not a noticeable thing.

Miss M. T.—Massage the muscles of the legs, using a soap lathering motion. Use a strong solution of epsom salts. You should do this regularly until the fatty tissue has been broken down and absorbed through the circulation.

Faithful Reader—Consult the doctor about this skin eruption and the blotches.

A little powder is not harmful.

HOW GODY GOT NICKNAME OF "BUFFALO BILL"

When the Kansas Pacific railroad was built through Kansas in 1867-68 it was necessary to provide food for an army of more than 1,500 track-layers. A source of supply was near at hand—west herds of buffalo—and men were hired to kill the animals for food. One of the best-known of the hunters was William Frederick Cody, a young frontiersman who had been a pony express rider and guide for General Custer.

The work was dangerous, for the Indians did all they could to stop progress on the railroad. They especially hated these hunters who killed more buffalo in one day than they destroyed in a week, and Gody took his life in his hands every time he went out. He soon became such an expert hunter that the military men gave him the nickname of "Buffalo Bill."

During Gody's career of a buffalo hunter, a period of 18 months, he killed a total of 4,380 bisons. His greatest exploit was his victory over Billy Comstock, a scout and rival hunter. The match was arranged by officers of Fort Wallace to decide which of the two men was the greatest slayer of bisons. They

Contrasts

A gradual, but a definite, decrease in the warmth of the letters was the despair of Isabelle Cochran in her correspondence with William Cochran during his four years at university. At vacation time he returned home with honest ardor that nearly satisfied her. Her infatuation, as it manifested itself, did not equal its degree when they became engaged, however, just before he left for his freshman year.

As soon as he was back in his fraternity house, what he wrote was cooler than their relations warranted. If she upbraided him for wanting interest, he would easily remind her he had told her that correspondence would be unsatisfactory at best.

Upon his graduation, in accordance with plan, he left school, without a return home, for a year of travel and "knocking around." Then did Isabelle truly have cause for worry. It was not only that his letters had a plainly different tone, but he wrote with careless infrequency.

A feverish struggle was going on in the mind of William Cochran. Like so many gently raised young men, the revelations of his advanced education, the questions induced by his own meditations and the selfishness of life caused by free experience, put him across the threshold into manhood, tired of the scheme of the universe that had so many checks to altruism at every turn.

Isabelle was still his dream girl, but she was sadly out of place in his new future, as he saw it. To marry her, he began to think, would be like going back to rolls and pretty pictures. Imagining him, with his ideal knowledge, babbling to her of beautiful times, the bunk of romance—and babies!

He reached London. His wanderings about that ancient but stimulating metropolis took him to the corner of Hyde Park, in the shadow of Marble Arch, where philosophers and demagogues mount boxes to address possible proselytes whenever there are two or three to listen. One smiling silver-haired old man, who spoke from a rude pulpit over which hung a banner reading, "The Prophet of Peace," intrigued his attention.

"A wisdom beyond our understanding has devised this life, that seems so like a muddle to many of us," the venerable orator declared. "There is no muddle, but a calculated orderliness if one accepts this key to the plan: that what disturbs us are but occasional extremes, sharp contrasts, that are not the rule but are rare exceptions. However, they are guideposts for the knowing, while the ignorant see in these contrasts only a chaotic confusion. At the opera they see but the richest and poorest of people; at the seashore, the most college and the most unsightly; at college, the definitely ambitious and the wholly aimless; at a dance, the most sensual and the most ethereal."

These words had a stunning effect on William, who felt he could hear no more. Hot with thought he lunged into the park, only to reverse his steps in a half hour to return to the prophet of peace. But the serene preacher had quit for the day.

William filed this cable that night: "Sailing first boat probably Saturday. Please arrange wedding of Miss Innocence and Mr. Sophistication soon as possible."

TODAY'S RECIPES
Mock Terrapin—Melt three tablespoons of bacon fat, stir in three tablespoons of browned flour and add gradually one and a half cups of strained brown stock, half a teaspoonful each of ketchup, bouquet and Worcestershire sauce, salt and paprika to taste, and a teaspoonful of onion juice. Stir constantly over a moderate heat until the sauce thickens and boils and add one cupful of diced liver and two chopped hard boiled eggs. Serve as soon as the latter ingredients are heated through.
Ginger Ale Trappe—Mix thoroughly a quart bottle of chilled ginger ale, a quarter of a cupful of chopped maraschino cherries, the juice from two lemons and four oranges, three-quarters of a cupful of powdered sugar and two or three drops of peppermint extract (not thoil). Freeze in equal parts of ice and rock salt.

The peach float is made like floating islands with a foundation of chilled boiled custard. Whip the egg whites stiffly and add sufficient sweetened peach pulp to flavor well, and cover. Drop by the large spoonful on the custard. Serve icy cold.

Escape the "Stout" Class

An attractive figure is not a matter of size but of correct proportions. The stout women who are never spoken of as "stout" are those who give a little time and thought to proper corseting.

Rengo Belt Reducing Corsets give the wearer an appearance of slenderness. The exclusive Rengo Belt feature gives strength and support where the greatest strain falls—over the abdomen and hips. They have the reputation of being "the most economical reducing corsets ever devised."

PUBLIC'S DEMAND HUSTLES SENATE

Impatience at Lack of Action
Starts Move for Closure.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette.

Washington—The United States senate is "gating" wise to public opinion. The few weeks of recess have many senators' an opportunity to confer with the constituents. The widespread dissatisfaction with the present time it has taken to get a new bill is one of a number of reasons why a group of republican senators met at the home of Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey the other night and talked ways and means of speeding up legislation.

Details of the meeting are just coming out. One after-effect was a conference with President Harding about the necessity of drawing up a closure rule to limit debate in the senate. This has been up before. President Wilson thought he had accomplished something when, at the beginning of his second administration, a new closure rule was passed, but it took 10 senators to sign the petition and then a majority vote to invoke the rule. It has been of little effect. Mr. Harding is naturally anxious to see the legislative machinery of the government oiled up. He isn't trying to dictate to congress what its rules shall be, but as a former member of the senate his advice was sought.

Absenteeism Real Issue
But the real trouble in the senate is not curable by closure alone. Unlimited debate has its advantages as well as disadvantages. Filibustering has been indulged in to prevent a vote being taken when many senators are absent from their seats. Absenteeism is the real problem that has to be solved—how to make senators stay on the job. Sincerely a day goes by that the senate doesn't have a call for a quorum whereupon members come scurrying from their offices. Hastily answer a roll call and go back to their offices again in

POLICE CLUBBING Tactics Out of Date Now--Chief

The day of the club and gun of the policeman is past, in the opinion of Chief Charles D. Newman. "The tactics of the club and gun are out of date now," stated Mr. Newman. "I can remember the time when we had one policeman and 40 saloons and he took good care of the city."

The president of the commission praised Chief Newman, stating: "He has filled the job with entire satisfaction. He does not go around howling any more. He is trying to score something of benefit to the city."

Stating that the reception accorded the delegates at the last convention, held at La Crosse, was a record, the committee will organize a drive for funds for entertainment. It is hoped that the drive can be started Saturday and completed the same day. The tentative plans call for a banquet on the first night, a theater party, decorations, and a city-wide cordiality.

On the second day, Edgerton will entertain the visitors at the Tobacco city, having raised $500 for that purpose.

INDUSTRIAL HEAD
JOINS TOWNSENDVail, Former Fairbanks-Morse
Head, in Local Plant.

J. A. Vail, general manager of the Fairbanks-Morse company of Beloit from 1906 to 1914, has made connections with the Townsend Manufacturing company of this city as chairman of the board of directors. While he is still making his headquarters at Evanston, Ill., he will guide the operations of the firm.

Mr. Vail was formerly chairman of the board of the Fairbanks-Morse company. More recently, and especially during the World war, he was in charge of general ordnance for the federal government, specializing on tractor gun carriages.

The new chairman considers that the Fairbanks-Morse company of Beloit is now manufacturing on a reduced basis at the present time, but is reporting many inquiries from farmers from North Dakota where the Townsend company believes that manufacturers are pulling out on account of the non-partisan league situation there.

It was stated Wednesday that the company has disposed of all old stock on hand and is now manufacturing only to fill orders. This situation is said to be better than a year ago at this time.

How E. S. He is still confined to the mercy hospital.

Giants Win Flag, Yanks Close--132 Games in I-C League

ONLY ONE CHANCE THAT INDIANS CAN CAPTURE BUNTING

New York.—The New York Giants are the 1921 National League champions. While they accomplished the feat mainly by their own efforts, it remained for the St. Louis Cardinals to give them the final shove that placed them beyond the reach of the Pirates, no matter what happens in the remaining games.

New York was idle, but the Cardinals, on their own bunting grounds, outplayed the Pirates twice Thursday and settled the league championship. They also created a new possibility that of tying the Pennsylvania for second place. The two clubs have three more games to play in the present series and if the clouting Cardinals make a clean sweep they will come to even terms with Pittsburgh.

MAYS TO PITCH FOR YANKS FRIDAY

Philadelphia.—Manager Huggins of the New York Yankees was expected to send his pitching ace, Carl Mays, against Philadelphia Friday in an effort to clinch the American League pennant. Mays' opponent in the box, Rommel checked the Yankees on their last trip here. A victory Friday would give the New Yorkers the pennant.

INDIANS IN DESPERATE DYING RACE STRUGGLE

Chicago.—The Cleveland Indians Friday made a desperate effort to send their ball game that may decide their chances in the American League pennant race.

After being shut out by the White Sox Thursday, 5 to 0, in the first of a four game series, the Indians have left only one long chance to win the pennant and participate in another world's championship.

To beat out New York, in the scramble for the flag the Indians must win all remaining three games and the Yankees lose their remaining three.

WHITEWATER NORMAL PLAYS MARQUETTE IN OPENER SATURDAY

(Special to this Gazette)

Whitewater.—Whitewater normal will play the opening football game with Marquette academy here Saturday. Although this is the first game of the season, the normal eleven, Whitewater has had a short practice period and the game is certain to be strongly contested.

With an increased enrollment, many are reporting for football this fall. Most of the regular players will be filled by new men. Coach "Chick" Agnew believes that he has material for the strongest line that the Whitewater eleven has had for years. His biggest problem is the backfield. Two new men, Sheahan and Polenberg, are showing up well at quarterback. Van Amerongen, from an injured knee, he will probably start the game Saturday.

The team is captained by Al Thakker, right end. Three squares are reported for the line. Assistant coaches Fricker and Reetz are endeavoring to put the new material in shape.

Palmer in Back?

This is Palmer's last year. He is in his best physical condition. While in most of the practice he has been playing at right tackle, it is possible that he will have to be pulled back to bolster up the backfield in the full back position. At left end, Knallan, a new man, looks promising.

The first normal school conference game will be played at Whitewater with La Crosse normal, October 21. Other normal conference games scheduled are:

Home games at Whitewater:
October 1—Marquette academy.
October 14—Milton college.
October 21—La Crosse normal school.
November 11—Platteville normal.
Games away from Whitewater:
November 4—Milwaukee normal.
November 12—Oshkosh normal.

The contractor is to formally turn over the stadium, one of the finest in this section, to President Tilden and other college officials, between halves of the game.

New York.—The four survivors in the third round of the professional golfers' association were Jim Barnes, Emmett French, Cyril Walker, and Walter Hagen.

Badgers Open Season Saturday

Madison.—Football at Madison begins Saturday. Coach "Earl" McGowan's Lawrence college squad from Appleton rubs up against the Badgers at Camp Randall athletic field in the initial contest of the season for both teams.

The Badgers are expected to average only 150 yards but having speed qualities, run high. Bojot, humbled Northwestern last Saturday, and Lawrence has practically the same squad that won from Bojot last year.

Badger fans expect Saturday's game to show some indication of Wisconsin's future conference strength. The intelligibility of Wallace Barr, quarter, and the graduation of ex-Capt. "Red" Weston, end, and big Ralph Scott and Howard Stark, tackles, make Badger conference prospects uncertain.

Coach John Richards has shifted his lineup daily trying to find the best combination. Gibson at quarter, Williams, Gould, and Elliot at halves, and Captain Sundt at full seem to form the most effective backfield.

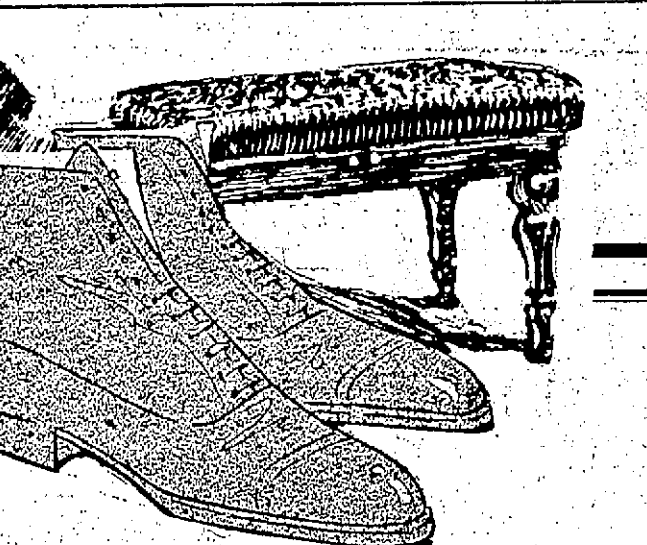

On the line Richards is depending on Bunge at center, Tobell at right end, and Braden at left guard. Hohfeld, tackle; Nelson and Brumm, guards; and Horne, end, have been working regularly and will probably complete the lineup that starts against Lawrence Saturday.

Blues Ready for Walkworth Here Saturday

The 1921 gridiron season of Janesville alpha school opens Saturday. When Walkworth high invades the local fair grounds at 2:30. According to indications, the best football crowd in several years will root the home team to victory.

The squad is in high spirits and confident. They have gained the "up and at 'em" spirit that should prove an indomitable factor in rushing them through the season with a good record.

THOUSANDS HONOR "MAYTY" AT TRIBUTE GAME IN GOTHAM

Saratoga Lake, N. Y.—Christy Mathewson, for 15 years the 130 of baseball fans, remained here Friday, while thousands of baseball enthusiasts gathered at the Polo grounds, New York city, scene of many of Mathewson's triumphs in baseball to pay him tribute.

Mathewson, one of the greatest pitchers known to baseball, has been here for more than a year, fighting the greatest battle of his life—against tuberculosis. The hero of championship games in the National League and of world's series games was anxious to attend the testimonial but was persuaded to remain here. In spirit, however, he was there.

Mathewson Friday is winning his fight for life. A year ago last July he came here in quest of health. He was here only a short time when he became seriously ill. He was in bed for months.

Today "Big Six" looks like the Mathewson of old. He appears normal in weight and has so improved in health that he is permitted to take automobile rides and short walks in the village.

PINK MITCHELL OPENS NEW "MILLER" CLUB

Minneapolis.—Pinkie Mitchell, Milwaukee, and Jack Joseph, Minneapolis, lightweight, meet in the headliner of the first card to be staged by the new Minneapolis club here Friday night. The bout is scheduled for 10 rounds, no decision.

Minneapolis.—Festus Tierney, guard; N. T. Doyle, end, and Harry Brown, quarterback on the University of Minnesota football team, have been declared ineligible.

Crapsier, right end; Lane, left half; Gold, right half; Knapp, quarter and Young full, McCluskey, Dawson and Gesteland will probably get a chance.

Season Opens Next Week, Twelve Teams

A total of 122 games will be played in the newly formed 12-team industrial-commercial bowling league the schedule for which is announced Friday. The season will open on Friday, Oct. 7. Games will be rolled at both alleys, starting at 7:30.

On account of six teams rolling on each side of the city and the schedule calling for games to be rolled in one night, special arrangements have been necessary. With only four alleys on the West Side, it will be necessary for double headers, one set of teams starting their game at 9 o'clock. At the East Side alleys, two of the drives downstairs will be used and four on the second floor.

The schedule carries the season through until the middle of March. While it had been suggested that it continue for three rounds, two were decided as sufficient. Otherwise the season would run until the last part of May.

POLICE COURT IS CHIEF'S NEW PLAN

Elect Policeman Justice. Hold Night Sessions, Proposed.

Establishment of a police court here with night sessions as a feature, is being considered by Chief Charles Newman and other authorities. Although nothing definite has been agreed upon, it is proposed to ask Night Police Desk Sergeant Charles Dickinson to run for justice of the peace in April, so he might qualify to conduct night court sessions in the police station. It is believed Sergeant Dickinson could be elected as there is now a vacancy in the second office of justice which no one sought at the last election.

Would Be Great Help

"It would be a big help to us in speeding up disposition of cases and would be welcomed by the victims," said Chief Newman, Thursday. "The chief purpose would be to handle cases arising over the week-end.

"Many times during the summer we picked up men Saturday night, noon and night and were obliged to return them to jail over Sunday morning. This could be eliminated if we had our own court ready to sit at any time. Other instances have been where motorists living out of town, arrested for speeding or parking violations, have been obliged to return the next day to appear in court.

Handle City Cases

Judge H. L. Maxfield explained that the matter could be carried out easily by his conferring power on any justice to act in his absence or disability.

"Justice" Dickinson would have jurisdiction over all cases under the city ordinances as well as all misdemeanors under state laws, punishable by a fine not to exceed $100 and costs of a judgment of six months.

The only other justice of the peace in Janesville, Charles Lange, has frequently been called into municipal court to sit in the absence of Judge Maxfield.

London—The suppression of the saloon is an achievement for which the British people cannot be too thankful, says a report by labor members of parliament, who investigated the operation of prohibition in the United Kingdom.

Cleveland—There are approximately 700,000 members of the Ku Klux Klan in the United States, Charles Love of Indianapolis told County Prosecutor Stanton.

Purge Bar of Dishonest Men, Plea of Grimm

Judge George Grimm and W. R. Bagley, Madison, president of the Wisconsin bar examiners, put their feet down hard against illegal law practices in Wisconsin when sentence was pronounced on Charles G. Grimm, suspended Madison attorney, Thursday afternoon.

Both the court and the attorneys in the case insisted that false practices among lawyers should be dealt with severely in an effort to "wipe out" black marks against the law profession.

Mark Against Law

"All society depends on attorneys for protection," declared Judge George Grimm. "When people cannot depend on attorneys to protect them, conditions in the profession are not right. As an individual I have little sympathy for the defendant. He is entitled to no consideration for such methods as he has pleaded guilty to using. It is a disgrace to the profession. We cannot depend on attorneys to obtain justice for all. Two years is the very least I would consider in the suspension, punishment, and he must make full restitution to the satisfaction of the court, and pay the costs of the action as well. If he does not make good his license should be revoked."

Must Pay in Full

"We are resolved to stop such practices," said Attorney Bagley, president of the state bar. "Reformation is of more importance than punishment and the clients who lose money through Grimm's illegal methods should be given full payment."

Recommendations were made on the sentence by A. E. Matheson, Janesville, who was appointed a special prosecuting attorney.

WATERTOWN ATTORNEY BARRIED FROM PRACTICE

Madison—Julius H. Gowick, former practicing attorney at Watertown, had his license revoked and was debarred from practice in Wisconsin by the supreme court in an order Thursday. Unprofessional practices were charged against him.

"It is a duty the court owes to the profession, to the people of the state, and to an honorable and upright administration of justice to revoke the license and debar the accused from practicing in Wisconsin," Chief Justice Siebeck wrote.

Chicago—President Lee of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen said if the strike vote cast by members on the wage reduction referendum were supported by the grievance committee, a tentative strike order would be issued, effective only when and if the other unions should strike.

The Store of Personal Service

So Many New Things to See

Pages of newspaper space would be needed to tell you of all the beautiful new lines that come flooding into the store every day from markets far and near.

You know, of course, that you'll find the new things here first, so we want to urge you to take time this week to examine the new Fall goods as we put them out. Every aisle will have its share of good new things fresh from their wrappings and best of all, you'll enjoy buying them because good things are now so much lower in price.

New Sweaters are Novel

We find it hard to keep them coming fast enough—bought in small lots to prevent their being common—always something new. When you come you will find: Fiber Silk Sweaters, Wool Embroidery trimmed, at $5.95

Plenty of Interest in Silks and Wools

A few minutes spent in looking over the new silks and wools for making Fall and Winter Clothes will convince you that here are just the things you want.

Wide Silks for the New Dresses. Blacks are extremely popular and like the browns and navies are being freely bought for general wear.

Silk and Wool Canton Crepes, pure Silk Canton Crepe, Crepe de Chines, and the new fabric—Crepe Knit, are here in new lines in 40-in. widths, while plain satins are shown in 36 and 40-inch widths at $2.95 upwards.

Wool Jersey for Jumpers, comes 54 inches wide and is very much in demand now for Jumper Dresses. The price is $2.50 yard.

36-inch Corduroy at $1.95 in navy and brown, is very much in demand for children's coats.

Special—36-inch Twill Back Satin Messaline in navy, brown and black—One day only, Saturday, at $1.50 per yard.

SPECIAL—26-inch plain color Chambray Gingham for Saturday only, at 9c yard.

27-inch Best Grade Swiss Outing Flannel for Saturday, 15c yard.

NIGHT SCHOOL IN OPENING, MONDAY

Heavy Enrollment Is Expected in All of the Several Divisions.

Public night school classes will start their 1921-22 work at the vocational and high school buildings here Monday night, according to announcement of Principal J. M. Dorrons, who expects the enrollment to exceed that of last year, the largest on record. Classes will meet twice a week, Mondays and Thursdays, from 7:15 to 9:15.

The teaching staff is practically complete and there are accommodations for 240 pupils. Registration should be made as soon as possible at the vocational school building. A large number have already enrolled.

List of Subjects

Classes are offered in typing and shorthand, commercial law, business arithmetic, automobile mechanics and traction, citizenship, bookkeeping, business English, shop mathematics, machine shop work, drafting and blueprint reading, cooking and an afternoon class in drawing. Classes will be formed and a teacher provided in any course where there are eight or 10 who desire any one subject. A class in sewing will be given Wednesday afternoon.

A deposit of $2 is required for each person enrolled in the night school, to be returned if a grade of 55 per cent attendance is maintained throughout the semester.

Those who have left high school and wish to complete their work may do so in the night school this year, as the regular subjects will be given in any grade for those who leave it. This, Mr. Dorrons believes, is one of the best things the night school can do—to make it possible for those who had to leave high school to complete their studies and be given a diploma.

The classes will be confined this year to the actual number for which the school has facilities. Only 11 will be enrolled in auto mechanics. To date eight men have signed up in this class, which only leaves three vacancies. Several have enrolled to date in the sewing class also.

PERSIAN LILAC IN BLOOM; APPLE TREES ALSO BLOSSOMING

George Silverwood, living about six miles east of Edgerton, near the lotus lake, has a Persian lilac in bloom. Its flowers give off the fragrant odor so characteristic of the variety. Several farmers report apple blossoms on the trees.

15 WOMEN GET NEW HINTS ON BAKING

Twenty-two Gazette readers have received free information booklets during the past week from the Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., 15 of them getting the pamphlets on "Baking in the Home." Milk bulletin continues popular.

Frederick Taylor, former president of the United States, was of English descent. Director Frederic J. Haslink informed a Brotherhood inquirer.

Albert Miller Lea, founder of the city of Albert Lea, Minn., was born in Lea Spring, Tenn. in 1807 and died in 1890, another reader is informed. Mr. Haslink writes:

"He was a lieutenant in the U. S. army and an accomplished engineer and surveyor. He was detailed with the 1st U. S. Dragoons to march through a large part of the western territory, particularly Wisconsin, to make surveys and impress the Indians with the power of the United States. He later joined the Confederate forces."

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

"If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting tired of hearing, and your hearing is becoming less, do to your drugist and get 1 ounce of Parmit (double strength), and add 1/2 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrh of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette:
I am a regular reader of the Gazette and have been for over twenty-five years. It is delivered to my house here in Edgerton.

The subject which ought to be closely followed is the expenditure of public money. Not only in your city, it ought to include Edgerton and Rock county.

I do honestly believe under proper management, costs could be cut 25 to 50 per cent and get the same results. I notice by the Gazette what you are doing in Janesville. It is just as "rotten" all over the county.

MOVIES AVAILABLE FOR SCHOOL SHOWS

Movies are being offered for the public schools of Rock county, with the University of Wisconsin as the distributing agency. Reduced rates are offered on rental charges. The types of the films are mostly classical, historical or educational.

But here and there in the list sent to Janesville school authorities is a screen sensation.

"The schools are offered film versions of famous historical characters, biblical plots and so on down to microscopic productions of plant life."

"The school films aren't all 'high-brow' for there is the scenic production entitled 'Cleopatra'—true to his story. There is everything from 'Pill-grims Progress,' 'The Dinosaur and the Baby,' down to 'Ochello.'"

Motion pictures, properly selected, say the Rock county educators, will take a prominent part in educational work even in the lower grades.

UNITARIANS WILL DISCUSS CHANGES IN GOVERNMENT

Chi-Purple Game First of Big 10 Battles

Chicago.—With the clash between Chicago and Northwestern furnishing the piece de resistance, nine of the 19 football teams in the Western conference will swing into action Saturday.

The Chicago-Northwestern clash will be the only game having any result in the championship standing. The other eleven in the conference will take the gridiron against minor colleges in what are regarded as practice games.

Michigan will open its season with Mt. Union at Ann Arbor, Wisconsin will go into action against Lawrence at Madison, Purdue will meet Washburn at Lafayette, while Iowa will take on Knox at Iowa City. Minnesota will open with North Dakota at Minneapolis and Ohio State will take on Ohio Wesleyan at Columbus. Indiana will take the field against Kalamazoo, thus giving Coach Stoen a second chance to test his eleven before the important clash with Harvard Oct. 5.

Illinois will be the only team in the conference. The Illini will not open their season until Oct. 8 when South Dakota will be the attraction at Urbana.

Although stunned by the unexpected defeat handed Northwestern last Saturday by Beloit, the Purple coaches have been taking hold this week in a determined effort to mold a machine for the encounter with Chicago. Coach Elmer McDewitt, his assistants, Edler, Putnam, Saville and Ferguson, started work Monday to correct the many fundamental errors their proteges showed in the Beloit contest. Following the ball, holding to it when once the man gets it, and vastly more punch in offensive play have been the principles the coaches have been instilling into the men.

McDewitt has been shaking up the team all week. There will be a new line-up Saturday against Chicago. It is hoped that several of the best men, now held ineligible by reason of classroom obstacles, will have been declared eligible before the game. McDewitt, Bud Turner and one or two other performers would make a different machine of Northwestern, the coaches say. Henry Penfield, giant lineman, probably will play Saturday, although his wrenched knee is far from well. It is also likely that Chuck Palmer will call the signals. Palmer and the other backs came out of the Beloit contest in fairly good shape.

Purple rooters will turn out by thousands for the contest, as the old-time rivals have not met on the gridiron for two years.

WORLD'S OLDEST MAN, 146, WEBS 4 TH WIFE OF 25

Park—Zero of Constantinople, 146, the earth's oldest man, has taken a beautiful Turkish girl, 25, as his fourth wife.

Zero, nicknamed "King of Life," worked ninety years as a street porter, quitting at 110, and at 111 he became porter in a munitions factory and still holds the job.

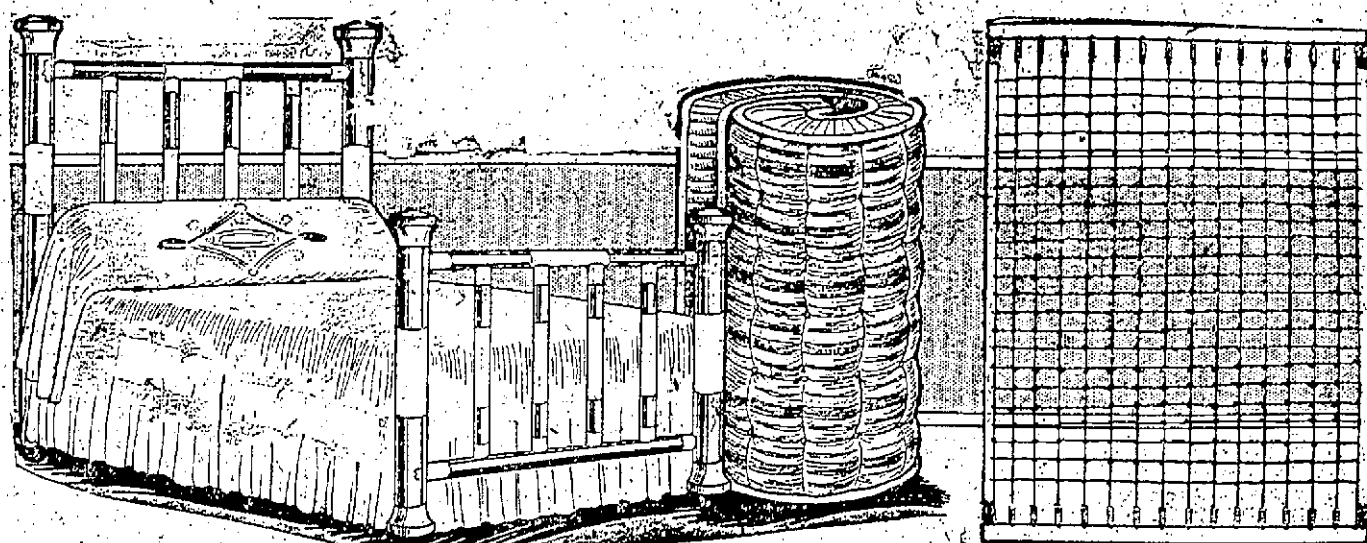

He has lost all his teeth and hair at 100, but grew new sets of both. He developed a third kidney at 105.

Because his son, 95, will not work, but "sticks around the house," Zero often loses his temper. He has been offered a fabulous sum to tour America, and says he may—after his honeymoon.
